ELECTION

— HERE & THERE

Election Day, 1968, in the United States is Guy Fawkes Day in England.

On Nov. 5, 1968, the people of the United States will elect a new president and congress. On Nov. 5, 1605, Guy Fawkes and some other people planned to blow up the King and parliament of England.

The Gunpowder Plot, as it was called, was exposed, and the king and parliament were saved. It is now a tradition in England to burn Guy Fawkes in effigy every Nov. 5. Fireworks are usually set off around the effigies and fireworks displays are given.

Political fireworks in the United States; traditional fireworks in England.

Antiquing

A lecture by George Michael, nationally famous authority on Antiques, will be presented at the Holyoke Museum on Wed. Nov. 6 in Holyoke. Mr. Michael will speak on the subject "New England Glass and Its Makers".

He will show examples of early New England glass. Following his talk there will be a question and answer period. This lecture on Antiques is sponsored by the Holyoke Museum. It will be held at 8 P.M. on Nov. 6 in the museum. Tickets are on sale at the museum.

For the past six years Mr. Michael has been a guest in the living room of many thousands of Antiquers through his popular T.V. program "Antiques". This program is a regular feature on N.E.T. over Channel 24.

Mr. Michael has served four years as auctioneer at the Carnegie Institute Museum in Pittsburgh, Pa. In this capacity he has been instrumental in raising thousands of dollars for the Institute by evaluating and conducting the annual auction of antique pieces by friends of the Museum. He lives in Durham, New Hampshire. He is the author of the book "Antiquing with George Michael" published in 1967. He is Antiques Editor for the Christian Science Monitor and also writes a monthly column for the New England Homestead magazine.

The Holyoke Museum is located at 238 Cabot St., at the corner of Cabot and Beech Streets.

Con Con on Ballot

The Constitutional Convention question will definitely appear on the ballot November 5th, thanks to a favorable ruling of the Mass. Ballot Law Commission. The Commission's decision rebuffed an attempt by Attorney Charles H. McGlue of Boston to keep off the ballot the question of calling a limited Constitutional Convention aimed at reforming and modernizing the structure of Mass. government.

Circulated last fall by the non-partisan Committee for a Constitutional Convention, the initiative petition to place the question on the ballot was signed by approximately 100,000 registered voters. Many more than the required 61,235 signatures were certified as being technically in perfect order. McGlue's attacks upon the validity of these signatures were found by the Commission to be without foundation.

Senator John M. Quinlan (R-Dover), Chairman of the Committee for a Constitutional Convention, said following the announcement of the ruling, "This is a victory for the people of Mass. They will now have the opportunity of deciding whether, fifty years after our last convention, it is time to take another long, hard, comprehensive, and informed look at our framework of state government and recommend changes where they find that the times have outrun the institutions."

AGAWAM JR WOMEN

The Agawam Jr. Women's Club will launch a service project for the well being of the senior citizens of their community. The goal in mind is to establish a "Life Line" for shut ins who live alone and have no relatives nearby to keep in daily contact with them. By calling these people each day to speak with them briefly, we are assured that they are in good health and able to function alone.

Should any senior citizen in the Agawam and Feeding Hills area care to be contacted each day by a member of the Club, please contact Mrs. James F. Fenton, Jr.

Ice Capades Stars

Two of the most refreshing young stars of Ice Capades are 2 of the newest -- Margot and Danne. They skated straight out of the 1968 Olympics in Grenoble, France, to a professional contract.

Margot and Danne were bronze medal winners at the Olympics. Wolfgang Danne is a towering skater, 6½" tall, strong and graceful, and is paired with Margot Glockshuber, only 18 but swiftly taking on a finesse that spells greatness. Danne's strength when teamed with Margot's diminutive size had to produce extraordinary results and it is doing exactly that with every show and every day practise.

Danne sends Margot soaring in high flights above the ice that might only mean disaster for a larger girl. They have been skating since Margot was barely past 14 and Danne was 22.

Danne was 18, an unusually advanced age, before he took skating seriously. Margot was 10. By some strange conspiracy of fate they didn't meet until shortly before 1965 when they went pair skating with each other for the first time at Garmisch.

They must hold some kind of a record for perfecting themselves as a team. By the winter of 1965 they won second place in the German Championships. Two years later they were the dominant skating couple of Germany and had moved to second place in the European Championships.

Both Margot and Danne spent much of the time riding horses in the unlikeliest of places, the high mountain trails of Garmisch.

Since coming to the United States they have become two of the hardest working members of the Ice Capades cast. The results of their efforts are clearly visible when you see their exciting performance in America's No. 1 Family Show, Ice Capades, which opens at the E.S. Coliseum, for just 10 nights and 8 matinees, starting WEd. Nov. 13.

Zundell Says Imagination Is Needed

Longmeadow Selectman Clifford M. Zundell, candidate for election to the Hampden County Commission, today requested the support of the voters of the 23 communities of the county "so that I may work toward making the Hampden County Commission an active and imaginative force working in behalf of the communities."

"Election Day is only a few days away. I have sought during the weeks of the campaign to outline not only what I consider the weaknesses of the present CC -- notably its lack of action-but I have also outlined my views and the things that I believe can be done by a county commissioner who has the business and governmental experience.

"The Hampden CC has, for many years, been a unit of government without enthusiasm and imagination.

"If you don't want it, don't eat it.
I'll put it in daddy's lunch tomorrow"

Lecturing to his psychology class on perception, the professor was stressing that often one had to reinterpret first impressions after further observation. By way of simple illustration, he said, "This morning I saw Mary Kane coming down the hall. She appeared to be wearing a plain green dress, but as she got closer I noticed that it had a figure in it."

"Life Island"

Just as a band-aid helps to prevent infection by keeping a skin cut or scrape free from germs, the "Life Island" isolator helps to keep a patient's whole body protected from infection in a sterile or germ-free environment.

"Life Island" is the trade name of a hospital bed which is completely enclosed in a soft, clear plastic canopy similar to a large balloon. It is being used in the care of adult leukemia and tumor patients who are being treated with drug therapy at the Clinical Center, the research hospital of the National Institutes of Health.

By the very nature of their illness, people with leukemia are most susceptible to infection. When a leukemia patient is given intensive drug therapy, his resistance to infection is lowered even more. It is vital, therefore, that a patient, while receiving this therapy, be isolated from all sources of infection in a completely sterile area for a prescribed time.

To ready both the patient and the isolator takes approximately five workdays and requires the participation of a great many people.

Because a stay in the "Life Island" includes some new and unfamiliar experiences, the patient and his family are given a pre-entry orientation.

All members of the "Life Island" team immediately responsible for the patient's comfort and well-being visit him before he is to enter the isolator. They explain how their duties will relate to his care.

Included are the physician, nurse, dietitian, social worker, laboratory technician, occupational therapist, chaplain, and others. They invite mention of items the patient would like to keep with him in the isolator such as books, writing material, grooming needs, etc., while demonstrating the "Life Island."

The dietitian asks the patient about his food preferences, while the occupational therapist offers an assortment of projects, ranging from pencil sketching to weaving and leatherwork, to keep him busy. Selected items are then sterilized before use.

The isolator itself must be thoroughly cleaned and sterilized before use, and the patient, too, must be made as germ-free as possible. Starting two or three days before entry, he is given numerous baths and showers. After each bathing, a complete change of bed clothes and linen is made. Even the patient's internal system is specially prepared for germ-free living.

All items, except oral medications, must be sterilized before being placed in the isolator. Sterile emergency equipment must be on hand in the "Life Island" room, and all the patient's food and beverages are sterilized before they are served.

Without the "Life Island" and the skillful cooperation of members of the attending team, the leukemia patient would not be able to benefit from intensive drug therapy.

FONTANA WILL MAINTAIN COMMUNICATION

Atty. Raymond J. Fontana of Springfield, who is seeking re-election to a second term as a member of the Governor's Council from the 8th District, said today that he will "maintain the open lines of communication between the people and the communities of the 8th District, and the governor's office that I have during my first term."

The 8th Councillor District includes all of Western Mass. Fontana said: "I believe that my close association with the governor, and other state officials in Boston, has made it possible for me to function effectively in behalf of the people of Western Mass. "I can see definite advantages in view of the fact that I will-- if elected-- be serving with the governor and the same constitutional officers during the next two years.

"This continuity of office and my relationship with the governor can prove of benefit to the Western Mass. area by, in effect, giving the people of the 8th District a more personalized representation in Boston.

"I have sought -- successfully, I believe -- to do a good job as a member of the Governor's Council, and while the position is not often accompanied by the headlines given other offices, the work of meeting the needs and problems of the people is endless and personally most satisfying.

"If re-elected to the Governor's Council I will serve with the same dedication and attention to duty that I have given the position during the two years of my first term. Thus I ask the support of the voters of Western Mass. on Nov. 5."
